

Ludwig van Who?

The classics are the foundation of excellence and creativity.

Citizens of democracies like Canada expect their public broadcasters to transmit enduring values across generations.

This week, CBC management began confining classical music and culture to the mid-day listening ghetto, turning its back on more than one million loyal Radio Two listeners who treasure it as a commercial-free oasis.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper—who appoints the CBC President and Board—has declared he would consider shifting Radio Two to a commercial basis.

Are commercials on CBC Radio next?

Speak out. Visit www.friends.ca for additional information and options for action.

WWW.FRIENDS.CA